CHAPTER I: INTRODUCTION
23
1.1 The site of Tell Sabi Abyad
23
1.2 The Late Bronze Age settlement
24
  Historical background
  24
  The Middle Assyrian administration of the provinces
  27
  The dunna of Tell Sabi Abyad and its role in the Balikh Valley
  28
  Middle Assyrians and other local groups in the provinces
  29
1.3 Previous work on Mitanni and Middle Assyrian ceramics 30
  Archeological excavations and surveys in the Balikh Valley
  30
  Ceramic studies
  31
1.4 Research aims
32
  Typology, chronology and comparisons
  32
  Pottery production at Tell Sabi Abyad: techniques and organization
  33
  Function and use of ceramics
  33
1.5 Research questions
33

CHAPTER II: FIELD AND RESEARCH METHODS
35
II.1 Excavation and sample selection
35
  Excavation procedures
  35
  Selection of the sample
  36
II.2 Description of the pottery and typology
37
  Collection in the field and subsequent treatment
  37
  Description and typology
  38
  Inclusions
  39
    Macroscopic determination of inclusions
    40
  Ware
    40
  Thin-section analyses
    41
  Texture
    41
  Manufacturing techniques
    42
  Shape
    42
  Surface treatment
    43
  Colour and Firing
    44
  Decoration
    45
  Special features
    46
  Measurements
    47
  Level and provenance
    48
II.3 Statistics and computer programs
48
  Measures of variation and diversity
  48
  Chi-Square Test
  49

CHAPTER III: THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL CONTEXT
51
III.1 Summary description of the stratigraphy
51
  Level 7
  51
  Level 6
  52
  Level 5
  53
  Level 4
  53
  Level 3
  54
III.2 Summary description of the architecture
  Level 7
  Level 6
  Level 5
  Level 4
  Level 3

CHAPTER IV: THE CERAMIC SEQUENCE
  IV.1 The sample
  IV.2 Research methods
  IV.3 The Mitanni ceramics
    Level 7
  IV.4 The Middle Assyrian ceramics
    Level 6
    Level 5
    Level 4
    Level 3
  IV.5 Ceramic chronology at Tell Sabi Abyad
    Developments through occupation levels
    Continuity and discontinuity: “Mitanni” and Middle Assyrian
  IV.6 Relative chronology: comparisons with other sites
    Level 7
    Levels 6 to 3
  IV.7 Absolute dating of the Late Bronze Age sequence at Tell Sabi Abyad
    Dates from cuneiform tablets
    Radiocarbon dates

CHAPTER V: THE TECHNIQUES AND ORGANIZATION OF POTTERY PRODUCTION
  V.1 Introduction
    The organization of pottery production in the Middle Assyrian period: previous work
  V.2 Studying the organization of pottery production
  V.3 The natural environment of pottery production
    Geology, and sources and properties of raw materials
    Climate and vegetation
  V.4 The potters at Tell Sabi Abyad and the social environment of pottery production
    Access to resources
    The identity and sex of the potters
    The number of potters
    The social and economic position of the potters
  V.5 The location of pottery production and the potters’ workshops
    Pottery workshops in ethnography and archaeology: what can we expect?
    The locations of pottery production at Tell Sabi Abyad
      The level 6 pottery workshops
      The location of pottery production at the site in level 6
        Level 6 workshop architecture
        Kilns
        Workshop architecture and associated finds
        Excursion: basalt “potters’ wheel” bearings, reconstruction of the potters’ wheel and implications for vessel shaping techniques
      Conclusion: the level 6 workshops
CHAPTER VI: FUNCTION AND USE OF THE MIDDLE ASSYRIAN CERAMICS

VI.1 Introduction

VI.2 Ceramics in their archaeological context
   Remarkable find contexts
   Remains of contents
   Ceramics in burials
   Secondary use and discard

VI.3 Performance characteristics and traces of use
   Fabric and inclusions
   Vessel design
      Shaping methods
      Relating vessel shape to function
      Surface treatment
      Special features
      Capacity
   Traces of use
   Conclusions of paragraph VI.3

VI.4 Ceramics in their cultural context
   Ceramics in contemporary texts
   Alphabetical list of Middle Assyrian pottery names
   Ceramics in a culinary context
      Serving and eating customs
      Cooking methods
      Beer brewing
      Other preparations of food
   Storage and transport
   Other needs for ceramics
   Vessels in iconography

VI.5 Conclusions

CHAPTER VII: CONCLUSIONS

VII.1 The ceramic sequence

VII.2 The techniques and organization of pottery production

VII.3 The functions and uses of the Middle Assyrian ceramics

VII.4 Middle Assyrian pottery production and technological style

APPENDIX A: LIST OF PROCESSED LOTS

APPENDIX B: SHAPE TYPOLOGY

APPENDIX C: DETAILED DESCRIPTIONS OF POTTERY KILNS

APPENDIX D: TECHNOLOGICAL, PETROGRAPHICAL AND CHEMICAL ANALYSES OF LATE BRONZE AGE POTTERY CLAYS AT TELL SABI ABYAD

APPENDIX E: POTTERS’ MARKS AND SIGNS

APPENDIX F: CUNEIFORM TEXTS FROM TELL SABI ABYAD RELATED TO POTTERY (BY F.A.M. WIGGERMANN).

APPENDIX G: FUNCTIONAL PROPERTIES OF SELECTED SHAPE GROUPS
