Acknowledgments

This PhD-thesis has been carried out at the Department of Surgery, Division of Vascular Surgery, Leiden University Medical Center (LUMC) with the support of a lot of people. The foundation of this PhD-thesis has been laid during my Master’s thesis project.

Since I am aware of the danger of forgetting people when listing the names of the people who contributed to my thesis, I would like to start with expressing my most sincere gratitude to everybody who contributed to this thesis.

Five years ago I started with a master’s thesis project about aneurysm sac pressure measurement. I would like to thank my supervisor of that project, Michel Visser for that wonderful and important time. You aroused my interest in (vascular) surgery and especially in the endovascular aneurysm repair. Your enthusiasm was an important stimulus to continue my work after the master’s thesis project.

Special thanks to Olivier Koning, for your valuable contribution to my PhD-project. Our discussions were not only very important for the scientific work but also very enjoyable. You have been my comrade in the ups and downs of this project. Your enthusiasm and humor were essential during that time. Also a lot of thanks for getting me involved in the clinical surgical work during my “laboratory time”.

Also thanks to Rob van Wissen for helping me with ultra-sound imaging and Michael Boonekamp who has always found the time to build the experimental setups. Furthermore I would like to thank Frank Speetjens, who was my roommate on the laboratory. I have always really enjoyed “picking” on each others’ PhD-project and the discussion about “true” science.

My friends and paranimfs, Steven Heijnsbroek and Hans-Willem van Oort, thank you for your ongoing friendship, support and all the good times we had. Hopefully, there are still more to come. I will always treasure the wonderful moments we spent skiing and sailing together or just fooling around and still share some of the best times of our lives.

I am very grateful to my brother Karel. Without your computer support it would not have been possible to complete this thesis. You spent a lot of time helping me to make the lay-out of the thesis and I will never forget that you saved my thesis after the crash of the hard-disk of my computer. (Of course, I had forgotten to make a back-up). And, even apart from that, you are a wonderful big brother.

For their everlasting love, understanding and encouragement I would like to express my utmost gratitude to my parents. I want to thank you for the way you raised me and always stimulated me to keep on wondering. In this way I learned to educate myself and acquired traits that turned out to be of crucial importance for this research. I probably would not have completed this dissertation without your unconditional support.

Last but not least, I would like to thank Mariëlle for her support and love. After a turbulent time and finishing of my thesis we can make plans for our future sailing trips ...
