CONTENTS

1    INTRODUCTIONS                        15
1.1  Woven cloth in Andean cultures      15
1.2  General contents and objectives of this research 16

2    THEORETICAL BACKGROUND               23
2.1  Introduction                        23
2.2  Style                              23
2.3  Ethnicity                          24
2.4  Status                             25
2.5  Gender                             26
2.6  Rituals to confront death           26
   2.6.1  General form and need of ritual 26
   2.6.2  Need of ritual to confront death 27
   2.6.3  Death ritual in archaeological context 27

3    METHODS AND MATERIALS                29
3.1  Textile assemblages selected        29
3.2  Textile documentation: Textile Analysis Form 30
3.3  Textile Analysis Form: Association 31
   3.3.1  Tomb                           31
   3.3.2  Tomb offerings                 32
   3.3.3  Human remains                  32
3.4  Textile Analysis Form: Specimen     35
3.5  Textile Analysis Form: Function     35
   3.5.1  Wear and repair                36
   3.5.2  Size                           36
3.6  Textile Analysis Form: Fibre        36
   3.6.1  Camelid wool                   36
   3.6.2  Vegetable fibres               36
   3.6.3  Colours and dyes              38
   3.6.4  Yarn production                38
3.7  Textile Analysis Form: Structure    39
   3.7.1  Main structures                39
   3.7.2  Secondary structures           41
   3.7.3  Final construction             43
3.8  Textile Analysis Form: Design       44
   3.8.1  Design in main structure       44
   3.8.2  Design in final construction   53
3.9  Textile Analysis Form: Form         54
3.10 Textile Analysis Form: Calculated Values 54
Contents

4. Ethnographic observations on textile production
   4.1 Anthropological fieldwork in the community of Cuyo Cuyo
   4.2 Procurement of alpaca fibre
   4.3 Techniques of spinning
   4.4 Dyeing procedure
   4.5 Techniques of plying
   4.6 Warping the loom
   4.7 Weaving procedure
   4.8 Calculation of time and material needed to produce a fabric
   4.9 Manufacturing a trapezoidal fabric
   4.10 Function of traditional weavings

5. Physical setting of the Osmore Valley
   5.1 Introduction
   5.2 South Central Andes Region
      5.2.1 Circum-lacustrine and Puna region
      5.2.2 Cordillera
   5.2.3 Western valleys
   5.2.4 Eastern valleys and selva
   5.3 Osmore drainage
   5.4 Middle Osmore Valley: Chen Chen site
   5.5 Lower Osmore Valley: La Cruz, El Descanso, and Algodonal Ladera sites
      5.5.1 La Cruz
      5.5.2 El Descanso
      5.5.3 Algodonal Ladera

6. Cultural history of the Osmore Drainage
   6.1 Introduction
   6.2 Palaeoindian Period (? – ±8,000 B.C.)
   6.3 Archaic Period (±8,000 to 1,500 B.C.)
      6.3.1 Higher Osmore drainage
      6.3.2 Lower Osmore drainage
   6.4 Formative Period: Early Ceramic Period (±1500 B.C. – A.D. 500)
      6.4.1 Middle Osmore drainage
      6.4.2 Lower Osmore drainage
   6.5 Middle Horizon: Tiwanaku culture (±A.D. 300-1100)
      6.5.1 Tiwanaku presence in the middle Osmore valley
      6.5.2 Tiwanaku presence in the lower Osmore valley
      6.5.3 Tiwanaku presence in the Azapa valley
      6.5.4 Decline of the Tiwanaku state
   6.6 Late Intermediate Period: Tumilaca, Cabuza, and Chiribaya cultures (±A.D. 950-1350)
      6.6.1 Tumilaca culture
      6.6.2 Ilo-Tumilaca/Cabuza culture
      6.6.3 Chiribaya culture
      6.6.4 Exploitation of the lower Osmore valley
      6.6.5 Chiribaya dominance over lower Osmore valley
      6.6.6 Cabuza and (Mayta-s-)Chiribaya presence in the Azapa valley
      6.6.7 Collapse of the Chiribaya culture
6.7 Estuquíná culture (± A.D. 1350-1450) 111
6.8 Inca culture (± A.D. 1430-1532) 111
6.9 Early Spanish colonial period 112

7 TIWANAKU, ILO-TUMILACA/CABUZA, AND CHIRIBAYA STYLES 117
7.1 Introduction 117
7.2 Tiwanaku style: iconography and textile tradition 117
  7.2.1 Portable Tiwanaku artefacts 119
  7.2.2 Tiwanaku textile tradition: fibres and colours 122
  7.2.3 Tiwanaku textile tradition: forms, functions, and designs 123
7.3 Ilo-Tumilaca/Cabuza style: iconography and textile tradition 132
  7.3.1 Portable Ilo-Tumilaca/Cabuza artefacts 132
  7.3.2 Ilo-Tumilaca/Cabuza textile tradition: fibres and colours 134
  7.3.3 Ilo-Tumilaca/Cabuza textile tradition: forms, functions, and design 134
  7.3.4 Textile evidence interpreted 136
7.4 Chiribaya style: iconography and textile tradition 137
  7.4.1 Portable Chiribaya artefacts 137
  7.4.2 Chiribaya textile tradition: fibres, colours, and structures 138
  7.4.3 Chiribaya textile tradition: forms, functions, and designs 139
  7.4.4 Textile evidence interpreted 146

8 PRESENTING THE OSMORE TEXTILES 151
8.1 Introduction 151
8.2 Textile preservation 151
8.3 Textiles from Chen Chen 153
8.4 Textiles from La Cruz 158
  8.4.1 Tiwanaku-like textiles 159
  8.4.2 Chiribaya textiles 163
  8.4.3 Specimens without cultural affiliation 168
8.5 Textiles from El Descanso 170
8.6 Textiles from Algodonal Ladera 177
8.7 Textile from Boca del Río 179

9 TEXTILES AND THE IDENTIFICATION OF LOWER OSMORE CULTURES 199
9.1 Introduction 199
9.2 Distinguishing Tiwanaku from Ilo-Tumilaca/Cabuza-style textiles 199
  9.2.1 Fibre and structure 199
  9.2.2 Form, function, and decoration 200
  9.2.3 Conclusion: Tiwanaku or Ilo-Tumilaca/Cabuza people buried at the lower Osmore sites? 203
9.3 Chiribaya garments from La Cruz 204
  9.3.1 Form, function, and decoration 204
  9.3.2 Conclusion: did Chiribaya people cohabit with Tiwanaku and/or Ilo-Tumilaca/Cabuza people in the Osmore valley? 205
9.4 Textile evidence of foreign contacts 205

10 TEXTILES AND THEIR CONTEXT 209
10.1 Introduction 209
10.2 Modes of interment 209
Contents

10.2.1 Wrapping the dead 209
10.2.2 Osmore’s death ritual 213
10.3 Age groups
10.3.1 Age groups and their clothing style 214
10.4 Sex differentiation
10.4.1 Camisa types and forms 217
10.4.2 Fashion show and calculations of yarn and time expenditure 218
10.4.3 Camisa quality and sex distinction 220
10.4.4 Sex and other types of textiles 222
10.4.5 Sex and non-textile artefacts and food items 224
10.4.6 Sex and personal adornment 225
10.5 Status
10.5.1 Status on intersite level 226
10.5.2 Status on intrasite level 231
10.6 Ethnicity
10.6.1 Textile evidence for ethnic identity 233
10.6.2 Non-textile evidence for ethnic identity 235
11 Interregional textile comparison 239
11.1 Introduction 239
11.2 Textile traditions from the Middle Horizon
11.2.1 Southern valleys 239
11.2.2 Northern valleys 242
11.3 Textile traditions from the Late Intermediate Period
11.3.1 Southern valleys 243
11.3.2 Northern valleys 248
11.3.3 Higher Osmore Valley 248
12 Conclusions 253

Glossary 261

Bibliography 267

Appendices
Appendix 1. Textile Analysis Form / Ficha de Análisis Textil 281
Appendix 2. List of associated objects 283
Appendix 3. Textile types and their translations in Spanish, English, Quechua, and Aymara 285
Appendix 4. Colour codes: descriptions and Munsell colour code equivalents 286
Appendix 5. Calculation of time and material expenditure for warp-faced camisas 288
Appendix 6. Extra data on camisas (tunics) 291
Appendix 7. Extra data on mantas, pañuelos and paños (cloths) 300
Appendix 8. Extra data on bolsas (bags) 302
Appendix 9. Extra data on fajas (belts) 303
Appendix 10. Extra data on raw fibre and single element structures 304
Appendix 11. Southern textile traditions from the Archaic and Formative Period 305
Appendix 12. Northern textile traditions from the Middle Horizon 306
Appendix 13. Southern textile traditions from the Late Intermediate Period 307
Appendix 14. Northern textile traditions from the Late Intermediate Period 311
Appendix 15. Textile tradition from the higher Osmore valley, Late Intermediate Period 312
Appendix 16. Catalogue of textile specimens 313

NEDERLANDSE SAMENVATTING (DUTCH SUMMARY) 333
CURRICULUM VITAE 339