Acknowledgements

The completion of this thesis ends my research project within the CATO program. Now, time has come to acknowledge everybody who has contributed to the success of this project. First of all, I would like to thank Emma for being such a wonderful roommate and traveling companion during these four years. Visiting conferences together always was great fun and I really hope that in the future we will be visiting many more. But above all, thank you for your friendship! Second, I would like to express my gratitude to my colleagues at Leiden University, and the CATO group in particular, for making me enjoy my research and university life throughout the years. And special thanks to Anne Marike for all the drinking sessions and pleasant coffee and cigarette breaks we had together. Last, but certainly not least, I would like to thank my parents Bert and Wil, my brother Franck and sister Heleen, and of course Marjolijn for their continued support, their interest in the development of my project, and the many interesting discussions we had.
Curriculum Vitae

Bart Terwel was born on November 12th 1980, in Arnhem, the Netherlands. After completing his secondary education (VWO) at the Christelijk Lyceum Arnhem (CLA) and the Leidse Onderwijsinstellingen (LOI) in 2000, he moved to Leiden to study Social and Organizational Psychology at Leiden University. He received his Master’s degree in 2004. His master thesis addressed the influence of “fixed-sum” and “variable-sum” assumptions on making use of the integrative potential that is often present in negotiations. In September 2004, he started his PhD training at Leiden University on a research project within the CATO program (the Dutch national research program on carbon dioxide capture and storage technology), which has resulted in the present dissertation. He is currently employed as a post-doctoral researcher at Leiden University. Aside from studying science, one of his major interests is the practice of draughts.
