Table of contents

1. General introduction 13
   1.1 Introduction 13
1.2 The research-teaching nexus 14
   1.2.1 Higher education and society 14
   1.2.2 Studies on the integration of research in teaching 15
1.3 Teaching in higher education 17
   1.3.1 Higher education as a separate field of research 17
   1.3.2 Research on teaching in secondary education 19
1.4 Relevance of the studies 21
   1.4.1 Scientific research dispositions in university education 21
   1.4.2 Tangible and intangible elements of the research-teaching nexus 22
   1.4.3 Teachers’ intentions and approaches to teaching 22
   1.4.4 Students’ perceptions of learning environments 23
1.5 Context and research questions 24
   1.5.1 Research context 24
   1.5.2 Research questions 24
1.6 Outline of the thesis 26

2. Exploring scientific research disposition from the perspective of academics 31
   2.1 Introduction 32
      2.1.1 Scientific research dispositions in literature 32
      2.1.2 Nature of science and scientific inquiry 34
      2.1.3 Context and research question 36
   2.2 Methods 36
      2.2.1 Participants 36
      2.2.2 Procedure 37
      2.2.3 Qualitative analysis of interview data 39
      2.2.4 Quantitative analysis of codes 40
   2.3 Results 41
      2.3.1 Six aspects of scientific research dispositions 41
      2.3.2 Percentage distribution of codes among participants 46
      2.3.3 Hierarchical cluster analysis and principal component analysis 46
      2.3.4 Relationship between clusters and background variables 50
   2.4 Conclusions and discussion 51
      2.4.1 Scientific research dispositions 51
      2.4.2 Implications for research and teaching 54
3. Towards an empirically based notion of the concept of disposition

3.1 Introduction

3.1.1 Dispositions of substances in modern philosophy
3.1.2 Three principles for the concept of disposition
3.1.3 Dispositions of subjects in educational research
3.1.4 Habitus as a system of dispositions
3.1.5 Thinking dispositions
3.1.6 Teacher dispositions
3.1.7 Research question

3.2 Methods

3.2.1 Three instruments to assess scientific research dispositions of academics
3.2.2 Participants
3.2.3 Instrument 1: Semi-structured open-ended interview
3.2.4 Instrument 2: Hierarchical ordering task
3.2.5 Instrument 3: Structured mapping task

3.3 Results

3.3.1 Results instrument 1: Semi-structured open-ended interview
3.3.2 Results instrument 2: Hierarchical ordering task
3.3.3 Results Instrument 3: Structured mapping task

3.4 Conclusions and discussion

3.4.1 Differences and similarities between the instruments
3.4.2 Implications for an empirically based notion of the concept of disposition
3.4.3 Suggestions for further research

4. Speech act theory as an instrument to capture university science teachers’ discourse

4.1 Introduction

4.1.1 Discourse analysis and speech act theory
4.1.2 Methods of instruction
4.1.3 Approaches to teaching
4.1.4 Research questions

4.2 Methods

4.2.1 Sample and research context
4.2.2 Procedure
4.2.3 Analysis of teachers’ speech acts
4.2.4 Post-course administration of the ATI
4.2.5 Analysis of typical speech act sequences

4.3 Results

4.3.1 Teachers’ speech acts
4.3.2 Typical speech act sequences
4.3.3 Groups of typical speech act sequences
4.3.4 Characteristics of the typical speech act groups
4.4 Conclusions and discussion
  4.4.1 Assertive and directive speech acts 103
  4.4.2 Limitations and suggestions for further research 104

5. Associations between teachers’ intentions and students’ perceptions of the research intensiveness of learning environments 109
  5.1 Introduction 110
    5.1.1 Intangible elements in the research-teaching nexus 111
    5.1.2 Modes of integration of disciplinary research into teaching 111
    5.1.3 Students’ perceptions of the research intensiveness of learning environments 114
    5.1.4 Research question 115
  5.2 Methods 115
    5.2.1 Sample 115
    5.2.2 Procedure 116
    5.2.3 Interview about teachers’ intentions 117
    5.2.4 Student questionnaire on research intensiveness of learning environments 117
    5.2.5 Analysis 119
  5.3 Results 120
    5.3.1 Teaching research-led courses 121
    5.3.2 Teaching research-tutored courses 122
    5.3.3 Teaching research-oriented courses 122
    5.3.4 Teaching research-based courses 124
    5.3.5 Congruence between teachers’ intentions and students’ perceptions 124
    5.3.6 Aspects of scientific research disposition 125
  5.4 Conclusions and discussion 128
    5.4.1 Congruence between teachers’ intentions and students’ perceptions 128
    5.4.2 Limitations and suggestions for further research 129

6. General conclusions and discussion 133
  6.1 Introduction 133
  6.2 Links between research and teaching 133
  6.3 Findings with regard to the research questions 135
    6.3.1 Research question 1a 135
    6.3.2 Research question 1b 135
    6.3.3 Research question 2 135
    6.3.4 Research question 3a 136
    6.3.5 Research question 3b 137
    6.3.6 Research question 4 137
  6.4 General conclusions 138
    6.4.1 Research dispositions of academics 138
    6.4.2 Evaluation of research dispositions 138
    6.4.3 Teachers’ speech acts 139
