MUSLIM MERCHANTS AND WORKING-CLASS IN ACTION:
NATIONALISM, SOCIAL MOBILIZATION AND BOYCOTT MOVEMENT IN THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE 1908-1914

Y. Doğan Çetinkaya

LEIDEN
2010
MUSLIM MERCHANTS
AND WORKING-CLASS IN ACTION:
NATIONALISM, SOCIAL MOBILIZATION AND BOYCOTT
MOVEMENT IN THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE 1908-1914

Proefschrift

ter verkrijging van
de graad van Doctor aan de Universiteit Leiden, op gezag van Rector Magnificus prof. mr. P.F. van der Heijden, volgens besluit van het College voor Promoties
te verdedigen op woensdag 26 Mei 2010
klokke 15:00 uur

doors

Y. Doğan Çetinkaya
Geboren te Istanbul
1976
Promotiecommissie

Promotor:
Prof. dr. E.J. Zürcher

Overige leden:
Prof. dr. Touraj Atabaki
Prof. dr. Marcel van der Linden (Universiteit van Amsterdam)
Dr. Yavuz Selim Karakışla (Universiteit Boğaziçi)
To Bilge Seçkin
Acknowledgement

INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER I
CLASSES AND THE PROBLEM OF AGENCY
IN THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE

1.1. Non-Muslim Bourgeoisie and the State

1.2. Muslim Merchants

1.3. The Muslim Working-Class

1.4. Culture, Class Consciousness, and Islam

CHAPTER II
THE EMERGENCE OF THE ECONOMIC BOYCOTT
AS A POLITICAL WEAPON, 1908

2.1. People Take Action: Mass Actions and Public Demonstrations

2.2. The Organization

2.3. The Workers’ Boycott: Oscillating between Strike and Boycott

2.4. Merchants during the Boycott: The Weakest Link

2.5. The Popularization of the National Economy
CHAPTER III
THE SHIFT FROM FOREIGN TO “INTERNAL” ENEMIES, 1910-1911

3.1. The Cretan Question ................................................................. 111
3.2. Meetings, Direct Actions and the Mobilization of Society ........ 112
3.3. The Boycott Society .................................................................. 134
3.4. Muslims versus non-Muslims:
   “Our Greek Citizens are Exempt from the Boycott!” ................... 143
3.5. National Economy, Muslim Merchants and the Working Class ... 161
3.6. The State and the Boycott Movement ...................................... 172

CHAPTER IV
THE MUSLIM PROTEST: THE ECONOMIC BOYCOTT AS A WEAPON IN PEACETIMES, 1913-1914

4.1. The Political Milieu .................................................................. 190
4.2. Pamphleting the Muslim Public .............................................. 193
4.3. The National Economy and an Open Letter to the Greek Orthodox Patriarchate ......................................................... 203
4.4. “Henceforth Goods to Be Purchased from Muslim Merchants” 207
4.5. Banditry and Agency in the Boycott Movement ...................... 222

EPILOGUE
THE MASS POLITICS IN THE SECOND CONSTITUTIONAL PERIOD AND THE BOYCOTT MOVEMENT

The Popularization of Politics and the Shift in Mass Politics ........ 237
Mass Politics, National Economy, and the Boycott Movement .... 250
Popular Ideology, Islam, and the Mobilization of the Masses .... 261

Bibliography .................................................................................... 267
Samenvatting .................................................................................. 281
Curriculum Vitae ............................................................................. 285
I owe many thanks to many people without whose help this study would never have been completed. It is more than a pleasure for me to acknowledge my indebtedness to them. I am indebted to many of my professors to support me. I have learned a great deal from my advisors Nadia al-Baghdadi and Aziz al-Azmeh during my stay in Budapest at Central European University. I owe thanks to Edhem Eldem and Zafer Toprak who had always supported me during my graduate years. I am also grateful to Prof. Sia Anagnostopoulou who has admitted my to her program in Panteion University in Athens and facilitated my travel to Greece.

The Greek lessons that I received from Yorgo Benlisoy for many years helped me a lot in finding my way in the archives and libraries of Athens. I am still grateful for his patience during our lessons. Yet, without the help of Foti Benlisoy I would never have completed my research on the sources in Greek. I have learned a lot from our collaboration both in the academic and political field. His twin Stefo Benlisoy was always ready to lend his hand when I needed.

I am also grateful to Vangelis Kechriotis and Anastasia Ileana Moroni who showed their solidarity whenever I needed. Our collaboration was very fruitful. Ileana gave me what she has found in the French archives which fitted well with the material that I found in other archives and libraries. Vangelis handed me the articles that he found in Greek journal Amaltheia and provided me the opportunity for an exchange of thoughts on late Ottoman history.
I owe particular thanks to Sinan Birdal who, as always, spared his precious time to read and comment on some parts of the manuscript. Our discussions on the broader subject of this thesis helped a lot to make my mind. Nina Ergin edited the English of the whole text and helped a lot to prospective readers. I am sure all who will read this text will be grateful to her.

I should also thank to American Research Institute in Turkey (ARIT) and Boğaziçi Vakfı who had supported me materially by their PhD Research Grants. They helped me a lot particularly in my journeys to Netherlands, Britain and Greece.

The personnel working in the archives and libraries in different towns and countries were really very helpful and saved my time by their assistance in finding necessary document in the right time in the right place. These are the people in the Ottoman Archive in Istanbul, National Archives in London/Kew, Greek Foreign Ministry Archives in Athens/Syntagma, Centre for Asia Minor Studies in Athens, National Library in Ankara, National Library in İzmir, Library of Erzurum Atatürk University, Atatürk and Beyazıt Libraries in Istanbul.

In the course of my graduate years I received assistance from many in different times and places. I would like to thank Seda Altuğ, Sarah McArthur, Konstantina Adrianopoulou, Barış Çatal, Başak Özçarıkçı, Erkan Doğan, Henrik Lindolm, who had hosted me in their flats during my visits to Amsterdam, Leiden, London, Athens, Smyrna, and Ankara. İlkay Yılmaz helped me a lot in Leiden while I was running in between different bureaucratic desks in the Leiden University. I have profited greatly from discussions with my colleagues Erhan Keleşioglu, Görkem Doğan, Ahmet Bekmen, Emre Taylan, Erol Ülker, Eylem Özdemir, Sevgi Uçan, Zeynep Kivilcim, Hakan Güneş, Sinan Yıldırımaz, C. Burcu Kartal, Kerem Ünüvar, Barış Alp Özden, Marko Zubak, Ferenc Laczo.

My family, Ismail, Hamdiye and Alper Çetinkaya, had gone beyond the limits of an ordinary family support. Although they question my spending time on books still in my thirties, never step back in supporting me economically.

Bilge Seçkin, to whom this book is dedicated, simply made the life more beautiful and always offered generously her insights and enthusiasm not only to my academic studies but also to our common adventure.