Introduction

Postage stamps and related objects are miniature communication tools, and they tell a story about cultural and political identities and about artistic forms of identity expressions. They are part of the world’s material heritage, and part of history. Ever more of this postal heritage becomes available online, published by stamp collectors’ organizations, auction houses, commercial stamp shops, online catalogues, and individual collectors. Virtually collecting postage stamps and postal history has recently become a possibility. These working papers about Africa are examples of what can be done. But they are work-in-progress! Everyone who would like to contribute, by sending corrections, additions, and new area studies can do so by sending an email message to the APH editor: Ton Dietz (dietzaj@asc.leidenuniv.nl). You are welcome!

Postal history and postage stamps of Stellaland

Introduction

“Stellaland used to be an independent Boer Republic, until it was annexed by Great Britain (27 February 1884) and made part of the British Colony Bechuanaland on 30 September 1885. According to Michel Katalog Süd- und Zentralafrika (2007, p. 929) five postage stamps were issued on 1 February 1884 (printed by Van der Sandt, De Villiers & Co, in Cape Town, followed by a stamp with an overprinted value). Officially they could be used until 2 December 1885. Stamps that had not been sold officially were sold to a private firm, Whitfield, King & Co.

Wikipedia EN: “The Republic of Stellaland (Dutch: Republiek Stellaland) was from 1882 to 1883 a Boer republic located in an area of Bechuanaland (now Botswana [sic, this is untrue; it was part of the British Colony of Bechuanaland, that is now part of South Africa]), west of the Transvaal. After unification with the neighbouring State of Goshen, it was the United States of Stellaland (Dutch: Verenigde Staten van Stellaland) from 1883 to 1885. During its short history, the small state became a focal point for conflict between the British Empire and the South African Republic, the two major players vying for control of the territory. After a series of claims and annexations, British fears of Boer expansionism led to its demise and, among other factors, set the stage for the Second Boer War…. Because van Niekerk's government had announced its intention to levy taxes on all trade going through its territory, Cecil Rhodes, founder of the De Beers diamond company, and the British administration feared a setback for their endeavours in the mining business, because Stellaland lay on one of the main trade routes. It was also presumed that the small country could eventually be incorporated into the neighbouring South African Republic in an effort to circumvent the Pretoria Convention of 1881 which called for an end to Boer expansionism. Rhodes even asserted that the area was of such a crucial nature to the Crown that if the territory held by Stellaland remained under Afrikaner control, British presence “should fall from the position of a paramount state in South Africa to that of a minor state”. These fears were fuelled when, on 10 September 1884, President Paul Kruger of Transvaal declared the area to be under the protection of the South African Republic and annexed it six days later. In December 1884 the British sent in a force under Sir Charles Warren, who invaded the country and abolished the republic in August of the following year before it was incorporated into British Bechuanaland”.

“Stellaland was a short-lived Boer republic from 1882 until 1885, located in southern Bechuanaland, west of the then South African Republic. With Vryburg as its capital it was incorporated in British Bechuanaland in 1885. British Bechuanaland was subsequently incorporated into the Cape of Good Hope in 1895”.

“Stellaland is a Boer republic located in southern Africa. Its history was short but eventful. In 1882 Boers from the South African Republic support one of the Tswana rulers in his fight against competing Tswana rulers, and in return for their support are given part of his land. Since the 1881 Convention of Pretoria, signed by the Boer and the British, forbade the South African Republic to extend its territory further into Tswana land, two new republics were formed by the Boer: the State of Goshen and the republic of Stellaland. Goshen and Stellaland, subsequently, joined to form the United States of Stellaland in 1883. In 1884, in the aftermath of the First Boer War, the Convention of London is signed thus redefining the relations between the Boer and the British. As per this convention, part of the territory of Stellaland is ceded to the South African Republic. Both the British and the South African Republic have an interest in the remainder of Stellaland – both declaring Stellaland to be a protectorate. The British interest is that Stellaland is located on a trading route that is of importance to the British. In late 1884 the British invade and occupy Stellaland to protect their interests. In 1885 Stellaland is annexed to the British colony of Bechuanaland formed the same year”.

A relation is thus found between the means of cancellation and the postmaster of the day. It becomes clear that Hartzenberg, Dekker and Eaton each had a distinctly different way of cancelling their stamps. The first stamps were cancelled with the date only (probably by Dekker), Hartzenberg applied the date and his initials and Eaton either did not cancel the stamp or applied a pen or blue pencil stroke. This coupled with the transit or arrival postmarks of outside offices gives us an interesting array of stamps. With the British takeover the postal route also changed with all mail now passing through Barkly West and Kimberley. Hence stamps are found cancelled at these two towns in transit with the dates corresponding with the period of British involvement”.

https://stadsbeplanner.files.wordpress.com/2012/10/1958.jpg?w=137&h=150 “Cancelled stamps: Stellaland never had a device for cancelling their stamps. According to Jurgens there were instructions to the postmaster “to cancel all stamps on letters with pen and ink”. Vryburg is found first listed on 8 August 1883 as the post office of the Stellaland Republic (Putzel). Stamps were delivered to Stellaland during February 1884 and during the first few months stamps are found manuscript cancelled with the date only. The earliest date recorded is 29 February 1884. The postal route during the period of the Stellaland rule was by way of Christiana and hence the ZAR target canceller with numeral 6 seen on stamps (applied in transit). From August 1884 onwards stamps are seen for most part with both the date and initials (of the postmaster). Initials seen are: “F.H”, “C.G.D” and “F.C.L”.
With the aid of old Stellaland documents lodged at the Cape Archives it is possible to positively identify “F.H.” as belonging to Ferdinand Hartzenberg and “F.C.L” as that of Frans Coenraad Dekker. The initials “C.G.D” belonged to a Dennison but only one stamp is attributed to him. The bulk of the stamps are found with Hartzenberg’s initials and only three stamps are seen with those of his predecessor, namely that of Dekker, who was the first postmaster. Dekker was already postmaster during the pre-stamp period and the earliest stamps cancelled with the date only would probably have been his work. Sir Charles Warren’s expedition reached Vryburg on 7 February 1885 with the aim to place the area under British control. According to Putzel the Vryburg post office was listed under British Bechuanaland from 23 March 1885. The practice of the postmaster to cancel the stamp with his initials is not seen later than May 1885. During these last months that the Stellaland stamps were in use it was cancelled only with the stroke of a pen or not cancelled at all. This practice coincides more or less with the takeover by the British and was probably employed by Francis Alexander Eaton whom replaced Ferdinand Hartzenberg as postmaster of Vryburg on 11 June 1885. The fact that stamps were not cancelled could suggest that they were not officially recognized by the British occupiers. The only example of Eaton actually cancelling stamps with his name is a cover dated 26 June 1885, from the early part of his officiate. A relation is thus found between the means of cancellation and the postmaster of the day. It becomes clear that Hartzenberg, Dekker and Eaton each had a distinctly different way of cancelling their stamps. The first stamps were cancelled with the date only (probably by Dekker), Hartzenberg applied the date and his initials and Eaton either did not cancel the stamp or applied a pen or blue pencil stroke. The Republic of Stellaland was formally created on 26 July 1882, under the leadership of its elected president Gerrit Jacobus van Niekerk, a farmer from Transvaal and was given the name Stellaland (Star Land) in reference to a comet that was visible in the skies at the time. The town of Vryburg was founded and declared its capital. At its founding, the new country covered an area of 5,985 square miles and was home to an estimated population of 20,500 individuals, 3,000 of whom were of European ancestry. The State of Goshen, named after the biblical Land of Goshen, was founded by Nicolaas Claudius Gey van Pittius in October 1882 in the neighbouring area called Rooigrond with the approval of chief Moshette. Goshen had an estimated population of 17,000, of whom approximately 2,000 were of European origin, and covered an area of 4,015 square miles. On 6 August 1883, Stellaland and Goshen united to form the United States of Stellaland".

Postal markings on Stellaland stamps

Alan Drysdall

A significant proportion of the mail that originated in Stellaland — and there was very little — was addressed to the Transvaal, often Pretoria, and crossed the border at Christiana. The franking on such a letter should have comprised a Stellaland stamp — usually a 3d duty — plus a ZAR 3d stamp to receipt payment of the inland half-ounce letter rates of both territories. (Stellaland stamps had no validity outside the Republic.) The Stellaland stamp was normally cancelled in manuscript with initials and the date of posting in Vryburg; and the ZAR stamp at Christiana, usually with the target-type canceller coded ‘6’. However, it would seem that occasionally the Christiana office cancelled the Stellaland stamp, and an example is illustrated above (at top-left). Uncancelled Stellaland stamps were not infrequently cancelled at the receiving office, hence the existence of Stellaland stamps cancelled at various offices in the ZAR and OFS.

Mail addressed into or via Cape Province was forwarded via Kimberley rather than Christiana, and there must be a possibility that the Stellaland stamps were on occasions cancelled there. An example of a 6d stamp apparently so cancelled on ‘MR 2 / 1885’ is illustrated above (top-centre) courtesy of John Taylor. Holmes (1971, p.27), however, records that:

The datestamps of some Cape post offices are occasionally to be found cancelling genuine Stellaland stamps, but the dates always show that they were applied after the stamps had become obsolete on December 2nd, 1885.

Genuine stamps are to be found cancelled with a double-lined circular datestamp, with the name VRYBURG around the top and S. R. at the base, with the date in two lines in the centre. The dates are FEB, 12 1884 and FEB, 18 1884. This datestamp is bogus.

The other two stamps illustrated — again courtesy of John Taylor — differ in that they are forgeries of the basic stamps. The single-circle datestamp struck on the 3d duty and inscribed ‘PUBLICR STELL’ is particularly obvious, but the 4d stamp printed in red(!) and cancelled with an oversized target-type mark coded ‘5’ is in a different class, and rivals the 1d stamp printed in blue reported by Holmes.

Revenue stamps 1884-1885

Two years later a number of them were issued handstamped with a monogram JPM since a number of the original stamps had been stolen”. And: “British Bechuanaland's first revenues were stamps of Stellaland with the country's name obliterated and British Bechuanaland added by hand in 1886. A year later Stellaland revenues were issued with a small blue handstamp with the name of the new colony. Both of these issues are extremely rare and hard to find. Later in 1887 Cape of Good Hope revenues were issued overprinted for British Bechuanaland. These were replaced by dual-purpose postage and revenue stamps later in 1887, but these were still mainly intended for fiscal rather than postal use.”

British Bechuanaland: Introduction

When British forces in Cape of Good Hope annexed the former Boer Republic Stellaland in 1885, on 30 September 1885 a new Crown Colony ‘British Bechuanaland’ was created, and other areas added south of the Molopo River. The area North of that river was declared a British Protectorate on the same day, Bechuanaland Protectorate, which would become the independent Republic of Botswana from September 1966 onwards. Between 1885 and 1890 there was a separate postal administration, between June 1890 and 1895 a joint postal administration. In 1895 the Crown Colony of British Bechuanaland became part of the Crown Colony Cape of Good Hope.

Current situation

Vryburg (Afrikaans for free fort) is a large agricultural town with a population of 48,200 situated in the Dr Ruth Segomotsi Mompati District Municipality of the North West Province of South Africa. It is the seat and the industrial and agricultural heartland of the district of the Bophirima region.

Location

It is situated halfway between Kimberley (the capital of the Northern Cape Province) and Mafikeng (the capital of the North West Province). It is on Cecil Rhodes’s great northern railroad, which ran from Cape Town through the Kimberley diamond fields, Vryburg, Mafikeng, and northwards beyond Victoria Falls. It is also on the N14 National Road which runs from Gauteng Province in a southwesterly direction through Vryburg, Kuruman and Upington to the mining town of Springbok in the North-western Cape. This road also connects Gauteng Province with Namibia.

The township Huhudi (Tswana for "running water") is situated just south of the town.

The Tiger Kloof Native Institute was set up south of the town by the London Missionary Society in 1904. A cornerstone for the building of the institute was laid in 1905 by the Earl of Selborne. The stone church on the premises is a national monument.

History

Vryburg has a strong sense of history, one which its citizens nurture with pride. The name Vryburg comes from the period in the 1882 when Vryburg was established as the capital of Republic of Stellaland. The Republicans called themselves Vryburgers ("free citizens"), hence the name of the town.

Vryburg was founded on September 20, 1882, when a site for a township was selected and named Endvogelfontein. On November 15 the same year, the name was changed to Vryburg. In December that year, newly laid out plots were apportioned to the volunteers by means of a lottery and by February 1883 some 400 farms had been established.

On August 16, 1883, Administrator Van Niekerk proclaimed the Republic of Stellaland with Vryburg as capital and himself as President. Stellaland split into two rival factions – those who supported annexation into the Cape Colony as mooted by Cecil Rhodes, and those who preferred independence.

In February 1884, the London Convention was signed, making Stellaland a British protectorate, with the Reverend John McKensie appointed Commissioner to British Bechuanaland. Vryburg today is the industrial and agricultural capital of the Bophirima (Western) region. When the Boer Republic of Stellaland was established in 1882, Vryburg ('Fort of Freedom') was established as its capital. The first and only president was G.J. van Niekerk. By 1884 the town consisted of around 20 houses. In 1885, the British seized the town and incorporated the area into British Bechuanaland, which in turn became part of the Cape Colony in 1895. During the Second Boer War, the British built a concentration camp here to house Boer women and children. In 1910, the Cape Colony became the Cape Province, one of the four provinces of the Union of South Africa and later the Republic of South Africa. When nine provinces were established in 1994, it became part of the North West Province.
Also see: Cape of Good Hope (APH Nr 9) for later postal history of the area of the former British Bechuanaland, including (again) the postal history of the area of Vrijburg and surrounding villages, and of Mafeking during the Anglo-Boer War of 1899-1902.
